

Calling all Forest Watchers!

Conservation Council of New Brunswick

The Conservation Council's Acadian Forest Watchers will be out in the public forest of New Brunswick this summer and fall documenting the effects of harmful and unsustainable clearcutting and industrial forestry practices.

The goal behind gathering video footage, photographs and testimonies from locals of the damage done to our forest is to provide essential evidence to decision-makers and the public of the need for actions that bring about the protection and restoration of our wonderfully diverse Acadian forest and watersheds.

The Acadian Forest Watchers will be responding to logging complaints as well as requests for presentations on what to look for in terms of violations to our public forest and waterways.

If you would like to suggest a location for the Acadian Forest Watchers to visit in New Brunswick this summer or fall, please call Tracy at 506.458.8747 or email forest@conservationcouncil.ca
